PREFACE TO THE THIRD EDITION.

About six years ago when I published my Index, I ventured to make a departure from the time-honoured practice of arranging cases in the alphabetical order of the names of parties. Since then my book has gone through its second edition and the ever-increasing demand has necessitated the publication of the Third. The immense popularity of my 'Index' has now laid the question of the merits and demerits of the innovation introduced by me in the mode of arrangement beyond the pale of controversy and it only remains to say a few words by way of explanation for alterations and additions made in this edition.

A reference to the second part dealing with English and other non-Indian Cases will show that, in connection with these cases I have reverted to the old method of arranging cases with reference to the names of parties. It may seem strange that I should give up a mode of arrangement that has found so much favour with the public and fall back upon the old mode of arrangement in connection with this class of cases.

The explanation is in brief, this:—Experience has shown that just as the most convenient way to refer to an Indian case is to refer to the volume and page of the Report, the best way to refer to a non-Indian Case is to refer to the names of the parties. I am indebted to Mr. T. S. Subramania Aiyar of Kumbakonum and a friend of mine practising on the original side of the Bombay High Court, for drawing my attention to this difference of circumstance. It will be remembered that in my preface to the First Edition I referred to the want of uniformity of spelling in the names of parties of Indian cases and the confusion arising from it, as one of the grounds justifying the mode of arrangement adopted in the "Index." But this ground is of no application to English and other non-Indian cases, wherein the names of parties are always spelled in one and the same invariable way.

There is yet another reason why an English case may more conveniently be referred to by names of parties in a book like the 'Index'. Owing to the greater number and variety of English Law Reports, the references by volume and page of the Report to every single English case are necessarily far more numerous and only one of those numerous references is generally given when such case is judicially referred to. Thus a single case comes to be referred to by references to different Law Reports on different occasions and under the arrangement adopted in the previous editions, it used to be noted under the headings of different law reports as if it were so many different cases. Again the Indian Reader, who is generally speaking, less familiar with English Reports, is often unable to distinguish at first sight between different Reports and sometimes mistakes a reference to one report, for a reference to another report. No such confusion can arise if the same case is referred to by names of parties, the spelling as I have already said, being invariable. By this mode, the identity of the case becomes unmistakable, whatever the particular Law Report to which reference may happen to be given. For these reasons, and in response to suggestions from different quarters, I have thought it fit to arrange English and other non-Indian cases in the alphabetical order of the names of parties. It is hardly necessary to add that in doing this, I have subordinated the considerations of consistency of practice and uniformity of arrangement to the supreme consideration of Utility. How far this alteration finds favour with the public, experience alone can show.

As to additions and improvements only a few words will suffice. To ensure accuracy, the book has been once more subjected to a thorough revision. The cases have been brought down to the end of 1909. To demarcate more accurately the pages dealing with each set of Law Reports, their edges have been first coloured in different colours and then the name of the Report is impressed on them by means of Rubber-stamps.

I cannot better conclude this preface than with a grateful acknowledgement of the kind and esteemed patronage extended to me by the Hon. the Chief Justice and Judges of the Bombay High Court by the purchase of more than a hundred copies of the second edition of the Index for the use of Judicial Courts in the Presidency. I am also equally indebted to the Punjab Government for its substantial patronage.

Thanks are due to friends who have obliged me from time to time by their valuable suggestions.

PREFACE TO THE SECOND EDITION.

It was not without some diffidence that I introduced my "Index " arranged on a new principle, to the Legal World, some three years ago. Now that the experiment has been tried and tried with a success that has gone far beyond my expectations, I may be allowed, while ushering this new edition to my indulgent readers, to make a grateful acknowledgment for their kind patronage to me and their high appreciation of my Work.

A book of reference like the present loses much of its importance if not kept up to date. Periodical supplements to such books are hardly of any practical utility and unless all the references up to date are brought together, incorporated and consolidated in one whole compilation such a book as this, is hardly a safe and convenient guide as a book of reference. It is therefore thought advisable to publish this second edition although but a short time has elapsed since the publication of its first edition.

To materially enhance the usefulness of the book, without disturbing its main features which distinguish it from other compilations of its class, the following important improvements have been effected in this edition:—

- ( 1 ) Wherever the number of referring cases is fairly large, a separate paragraph is assigned to each class of such cases e. g. Fol. Appr. Diss: &c &c. This arrangement, besides having the advantage of catching the eye, affords space at the end of each paragraph for making notes of new references.
- ( 2 ) With a view to afford further facilities to those that desire to be always up to date, a few pages at the end of each series of cases taken from the I. L. R. and the principal private journals that are current, have been interleaved.
- ( 3 ) To enable the reader to find out a particular section of cases at a moment's notice, the pages allotted to each group of cases are indicated by printing on their front edges the name of the group by means of rubber-stamps.
- ( 4 ) To keep the bulk of the book from swelling on account of the addition of new matter, its size has been altered from Demi to Royal. This change in the size makes the volume uniform with the I.

L. R. & most other legal publications of which, the Index is expected to keep company.

- ( 5 ) The Index has been thoroughly revised and is brought up to date, In addition to those that are mentioned in the first edition the following Reports and journals have been Indexed in this edition:-

L R I A vols 31-33; I L R Cal vols 32-34; Bom vols 29-31; Allahabad vols 27-29; Mad vols 28-30; C W N vols 9-11 & 8 nos of vol 12; M L J vols 15-17; Bom L R vols 7-9; C L J vols 1-6; All W N 1905-1907; M L T. vol 1; A L J vols 1-4.

- ( 6 ) The typography and the general get up of the book have been much improved and notwithstanding many important improvements and large additions the original price of the book has been maintained to keep it within the easy reach of all.

Some of my readers suggested that when the time for publishing the second edition comes the whole book should be interleaved with a view that the book may be kept up to date for a long time by means of manuscript notes of new references. I regret, I have not been able to accede to the suggestion for various reasons. In the first place, it is essential that the handy size of the book should be maintained any how ; again the new references for a few years to come can be conveniently accomodated in the marginal space ; lastly, fresh consolidation, at the interval of a few years, is indispensable in the case of a book like the Index. For these and other similar reasons, I have thought it fit to interleave only a few pages at the end of each series, wherein only the new references are likely to be more than what could be accomodated in the marginal space.

In concluding this preface, I must not omit to mention the names of a few friends to whom I feel deeply obliged for the help they rendered in connection with the preparation of the Index. Thanks are due to Mr. N. V. Gokhle B. A. L. L. B. Pleader. High Court Bombay, for many valuable suggestions and also to Mr. Nanubhai K. Majmundar B. A. L. L. B. Munsiff Dabhoi, for some occasional help.

PREFACE TO THE FIRST EDITION,

THE utility and necessity of publications like this, are so well-known to those, for whom they are meant, that a long and elaborate preface would be a mere superfluity. But as the system and method of compilation adopted in this volume, materially differ, from those adopted by the previous authors, it would not be out of place here to give a short explanation there-of.

THE value of books of this nature depends on the degree of facility they afford for reference. All previous Indexes being arranged with reference to the names of parties, are attended with some obviously great inconveniences. Citations are generally made with reference to the number and page of the reports and not with reference to names of parties; consequently, before one can have any help from the existing publication, one must, refer to the report cited for finding out the names of parties. This trouble is further aggravated by the absence of uniformity in spelling the names of parties. The varying modes of arranging names according to surnames or proper names and the random use of Reg, Impertix, Queen, Empress &c. in criminal cases, render the work of reference extremely difficult. The result is that at times, compilations based on the alphabetical system, fail to serve the purpose and especially so, when their help is required during the course of arguments.

MOREOVER it rarely happens that a particular case is referred to, in all the later rulings bearing on the subject, and therefore references under it cannot be exhaustive. Under these circumstances to assure oneself that all the existing rulings on the subject have been exhausted, one has to refer again to the cases mentioned under that case. In order to do this one must first refer to the reports themselves to find out the names of parties and then refer back to the Index. In practice, this has to be done several times before one can be sure that all the cases on the point have been traced. The difficulty of the task can be easily imagined, in view of the inconveniences which, as observed above, necessarily attend compilations based on the alphabetical system. With a view to obviate all these inconveniences and trouble, and to supply a book of reference sufficient to serve the purpose without any exterior aid, I have thought fit to arrange the Index with reference to the pages and numbers of the Reports themselves, and to omit the names of parties altogether.

THE book contains all the Indian as well as English and other non-Indian cases judicially noticed from the year 1811 to the end of December 1904, and is divided into two parts. The first contains the former while the 2nd comprises the latter. The 1st part is arranged under seven sub-division viz. ( 1 ) Privy Council, ( 2 ) Calcutta, ( 3 ) Bombay, ( 4 ) Madras, ( 5 ) Allhabad, ( 6 ) Agra, and ( 7 ) Punjab. In the 2nd part the various reports are arranged alphabetically and the cases noted under them with reference to their number and page. An exception in the case of reports under "L" has been made. These have been placed first in this part as it embraces the English Law Reports which is by far the most important series of reports. The reader is referred to the tables of reference for having a general view of the arrangement and contents of the book.

LOOKING to its completeness and superior method of compilation as well as its reasonable price, it is hoped that the book will make itself popular and acceptable to the legal profession.

DESAI'S
HAND-BOOK OF CRIMINAL CASES.

BEING.

A Verbatim Reprint of all Cr. Cases Reported in the Indian Law Reports for 1900 to 1906.

Bound

IN TWO VOLUMES.

cloth gilt

Price Rs. 14. (For both the Vols), Postage Free.

As there is no knowing what new and unforeseen points may develop during the course of an argument, the truly "practical" lawyer is always anxious above all to have by his side the entire case-law if possible. The impracticability of carrying the 120 volumes of the I. L. R. in Court on every occasion may be allowed to be a sufficient justification for separately publishing the criminal cases in a few handy volumes. Seven years ago Mr. Cranenburgh published in five volumes the Criminal Cases that appeared in the I. L. R. from 1876 to 1899. The present Hand-Book is an effort in the same direction being a verbatim Reprint of all the Criminal Cases reported in the I. L. R. (four series) for 1900 to 1906, and it is hoped, the Legal Profession will welcome it as it did the first effort.

As in these handy volumes are collected together the criminal cases that lie scattered over the 28 volumes of the last 7 years of the I. L. R. it is expected to be equally serviceable to those who possess I. L. R. as well as to those that do not.

To enhance the usefulness of the book each series of the Reports is supplemented by (1) An Exhaustive Subject-Index; (2) A Table of cases; and (3) A Statement of corresponding pages. Moreover where a case has been subsequently judicially dealt with, such subsequent cases are noted down with their effect just below the head-note.
